

The FCC should definately mandate the standards for digital tv. If the content is to be encrypted it should be required that a open standard be used and that a free key be provided so that small companys and individuals looking to build homebrew PVR devices are not locked out by the media conglomerates.